A Day at IIM Bangalore – Where Leadership Meets Innovation.

On 26 February 2026, I had the honour of visiting the prestigious Indian Institute of Management Bangalore - a name that represents excellence in management education, research, and leadership.

Walking through the iconic stone corridors and expansive green campus was truly inspiring. The thoughtfully designed academic blocks, world-class library, and research centres reflect an environment that encourages intellectual depth, collaboration, and innovation. The campus itself embodies the spirit of inquiry and forward-thinking leadership.

What stood out to me was the strong alignment between academic rigour and real-world impact - a model that prepares future leaders to think strategically, act responsibly, and create sustainable value.

Key Takeaways from the Visit:

- A distinguished legacy of excellence
- A research-driven academic ecosystem
- Infrastructure that fosters dialogue and innovation
- A culture that shapes confident and ethical leaders

I extend my sincere gratitude to Dayananda Sagar College of Arts, Science and Commerce for organising this insightful campus tour.

A heartfelt thank you to Subbulakshmi Somu, CMBE, Sowjanya M Nagaraj Mam And Muralidhara K S sir - whose initiative made this visit possible. Their guidance, mentorship, and detailed insights throughout the tour added immense value to the experience and made it truly meaningful.

I left the campus deeply inspired, with renewed motivation to strive for excellence and continuous growth in the field of management.

Today, 26 February 2026, I had the privilege of visiting Indian Institute of Management Bangalore for a guided campus tour – an enriching opportunity to see first-hand how an institution of this stature blends academic rigour, research, and entrepreneurship.

My tour covered the academic core, library facilities, research centres and the entrepreneurship ecosystem. The campus architecture and landscaping create an open, collaborative atmosphere that encourages informal learning and discussion. The library – an independent, multi-level facility serving students and faculty – stood out for its design and resources.

What I learned about IIM Bangalore (high-level points)

- Legacy & mission – Established in the early 1970s, IIM Bangalore was created to deliver excellence in education, research and consulting in management.
- Programmes – The Institute offers a broad portfolio including flagship post-graduate programmes, doctoral studies and executive education for senior professionals.
- Entrepreneurship & incubation – NSRCEL, IIMB's incubation and entrepreneurial learning centre, is a leading hub that supports startups through mentorship, programs and connections to industry. Seeing NSRCEL on campus made the Institute's support for founders tangible.
- Expansion & innovation – IIMB is actively expanding its footprint and educational offerings, including new campus developments and initiatives that aim to broaden access and nurture undergraduates and entrepreneurs.

Highlights from the tour (quick takeaways)

- A harmonious mix of green open spaces and functional learning environments.
- Dedicated research centres that bridge academia and industry.
- A visible entrepreneurial ecosystem (NSRCEL) that catalyses early-stage ventures.

I am grateful to the Dayananda Sagar College of Arts, Science and Commerce for hosting the tour of Indian Institute of Management Bangalore with our beloved Prof. Subbulakshmi Somu, CMBE, Prof. Sowjanya M Nagaraj and Prof. Muralidhara K S (Alumini) sharing insights into their programmes and facilities. I left inspired – with renewed appreciation for how top management schools can shape leaders, foster innovation and contribute to the entrepreneurial fabric of a city.

If anyone from the IIMB community or alumni would like to connect and share perspectives, I'd be glad to continue the conversation here on LinkedIn.
